General Manager Travels To Central America To Aid Christian Radio Station

For Immediate Release 10 September 2001

George McClintock, General Manager of WNQM-AM-1300 and WWCR-Shortwave (World Wide Christian Radio) traveled last month to Costa Rica to aid a small Christian radio station with engineering problems.

Since some roads were impassable, due to a storm and heavy rains, passage to the transmitter site was extremely rugged and difficult. This picture shows traffic following the railroad tracks across an old bridge designed for train traffic. Several streams required crossing, including old wooden plank bridges.

WNQM/WWCR has been offering assistance over the last several years in order to keep the Costa Rica transmitters on the air. This project has been a labor of love and an invaluable source of knowledge for Mr. McClintock.

This station in Costa Rica is one of several that have received assistance through personal visits or telephone calls. "I have a real feeling for the problems that these kinds of overseas Christian radio stations encounter and hope that my limited assistance will keep them on the air and the programming available to their local listeners," Mr. McClintock commented.

WWCR (World Wide Christian Radio) which serves Europe, the Middle East and Africa on Shortwave, is the sister station to WNQM, 1300-AM, all located in Nashville, Tennessee.
